In today's world, students need more than academics—they need encouragement, support, and someone who believes in them. That's where Hiawatha TeamMates comes in.

TeamMates is a school-based mentoring program pairing caring adults with students in grades 5–12. Mentors meet weekly during school hours, offering a steady presence, a listening ear, and encouragement to dream big.

Why it matters:

- Students with mentors are more likely to stay motivated, confident, and engaged.
- Mentors provide fresh perspectives and expose students to new opportunities.
- The entire community benefits when young people feel connected and supported.

The Hiawatha TeamMates program has already been recognized as the Kansas Chapter of the Year, but the need for mentors remains strong. Right now, many students are waiting for someone like you.

Becoming a mentor is simple:

- Meet with a student once a week for 20–30 minutes at school.
- Commit to showing up consistently, it's your presence that makes the difference.
- No special skills required, just care, listen, and encourage.
