With some of our members having already been vaccinated, and others finally able to schedule vaccination appointments, we are heading ever closer to the moment when we can resume in-person services. Having said that, I want to make a few things perfectly clear. First, the demand for in-person services has frankly not been that high, given conversations that I have had with Rabbi Henkin and with Motti, and the feedback we have received from membership. If there are more of you who are ready to come back to the synagogue, please let us know. Second, the CDC is still recommending that Americans avoid events and gatherings (https://www.cdc.gov/coronavirus/2019-ncov/community/faith-based.html), at this stage, having passed half a million American deaths in this pandemic, we are hardly out of the woods. I have been in touch with our relationship manager from the United Synagogue of Conservative Judaism, which counts over 600 congregations in its membership. As I write this, there has been no guidance issued by the USCJ on re-opening. Some congregations have opened, allowing attendance only by those who have been vaccinated, requiring social distancing of at least six feet (including distancing between family members), masks, and mandatory registration (no drop-ins) and waivers releasing the synagogue from liability in the event an attendee does contract Covid. Given those restrictions, one might wonder why we would bother to have services under those circumstances. My own feeling is that after all these months of separation, seeing each other from afar, behind masks, is a relative improvement. It does raise the question, however, that if seeing one another is the goal, might this goal be accomplished somewhere other than the synagogue? Is there a certain fellowship, or a certain closeness to G-d that can only be achieved within our sanctuary? Is the reward worth literally risking death, whether your own or that of a fellow congregant? I don't have the answers, and I hope you weren't expecting that I did. No one does. As the Yiddish proverb says, "We plan, G-d laughs." I do know this: if we wait until it is absolutely safe to return to the synagogue, we will never reopen. The synagogue cannot guarantee absolute safety. If a new vaccine eradicated Covid entirely, the risk of being run over in our parking lot would still exist. What I can guarantee is that the synagogue leadership understands that our members are our greatest resource and that we respect your feelings and needs as congregants and will do our best to accommodate those needs. If you wish to discuss this, or anything else, contact me, contact Motti, contact the Rabbi. We are happy to discuss and always eager to hear what our congregants have to say. Also, there is no need to relay messages to us through other congregants; I would hope you would feel comfortable enough to speak directly to one of the three of us. As always, best wishes and stay healthy. Matthew Allan matthew@kw.com 912.401.4663

FROM THE DESK OF THE RABBI

Hoping for Freedom

With Purim now behind us, many of us are now turning our attention to Passover, which begins at the end of this month (the first seder is March 27, for those who were not sure). As we start to think about what this Passover and our s'darim will look like this year, I can't help but think of one of the most important lines of the Haggadah: "In every generation, each person should see himself/herself as if he/she was leaving Egypt."

For many Jews throughout history, this line was not all that difficult for them. They themselves felt as if they were in their own sort of Egypt, whether it was fear of persecution, trying to practice their faith in secret under threat of violence, or living themselves as slaves to the rulers of their time. It was easy for them to dream of a better life, of freedom, of hope and promise and imagine themselves being freed from their shackles much as our ancestors were freed from Egypt.

In most years, imagining ourselves in 21st Century America as slaves is a little trickier. In the past, I've encouraged us to think deeper about those things to which we still feel enslaved—work, health, responsibilities, guilt, addiction, and any host of other burdens we carry on a daily basis. But this isn't just any other year and our imaginations don't need to work as hard this Passover. Since even before last Passover, it feels like we have been enslaved to a microscopic virus that has upended every facet of our lives. It has robbed us of celebrating a full cycle of holidays with our friends and family, our social networks, our children's schooling, our freedom to go to stores and restaurants, our jobs, our mental health, and, perhaps worst of all, our sense of security as many of us have spent time over this past year afraid of contracting the virus.

The message of Passover and its seder is that there is always reason to have hope. In rabbinic thought, the Exodus was not a one-time event; it is a paradigm, a model, of redemption. Just as God saved our ancestors from slavery in Egypt, the holiday gave them hope that God would save them from the Romans, the Crusades, the Spanish Inquisition, the pogroms, and the Holocaust. Passover is a reminder that regardless of what we are going through, hope cannot be taken away from us. And that applies to the COVID-19 pandemic as well. Already, there is significant hope as we learn more about how to prevent the virus's spread and vaccines are becoming available. Freedom from this pandemic is feeling more and more like a possibility. As we celebrate Passover this year, may its message of hope inspire each of us and our celebrations, helping us find our way out of this pandemic to freedom. Hag Sameah, and we wish you a happy and meaningful Passover.

Sell Your Hametz

As we approach the holiday of Pesah (Passover), it is not only prohibited to eat or prepare any foods that contain hametz (any sort of leavened bread product, including breads, pastries, biscuits, cookies, cakes, etc.), it is also prohibited to own such foods. There is a tradition by which one may store hametz products where they will not be accidentally used during Passover or mixed with Passover foods and sold to a non-Jew until the holiday ends, when it is re-purchased.

By filling out this form, you are permitting Rabbi Henkin to follow this tradition and sell your hametz on your behalf. If you would like him to do so, please fill out this form in its entirety no later than Wednesday, March 24.

For your convenience, we are again offering an electronic form this year. You may fill out the form here: <https://forms.gle/m4EA47N4B5sG2tzL8>. If you would like a hard copy of the form, please contact Rabbi Henkin at rabbihenkin@gmail.com.

Jewish Education Alliance March Featured Artist (Sean) Grenville Emmet

Biography

(Sean) Grenville Temple Emmet IV grew up in Manhattan. He is a direct descendant of Levi Parsons Morton who was Vice President under Benjamin Harrison and the minister to France who accepted the gift of the Statue of Liberty.

Sean enjoys the use of natural light in capturing the intricacies of form and color. He is often drawn to fall colors in his photography. He is a film enthusiast who enjoys finding scenery from day hikes, occasional walks and the simple adventure.

In his collection there are photos from Chimney Top Mountain in the Great Smokey Mountains, and a stop along Cabot Trail in Nova Scotia. On one of his walks commencing in Dublin, Ireland, he took photos trekking north along Northern Ireland's coastline until reaching County Donegal.

There are photos of Savannah never generally seen up this close. The picturesque photos of the Greek Island of Santorini and Ocean House in Watch Hill, Rhode Island show their beauty in a demonstrable way.

In particular note are photos of the World Trade Center in New York City and La Cambe Cemetery in France, where World War II German soldiers are buried.
