Weekly Torah Reading – Tazria-Metzora

Pshat – The Story at a Glance

1. This double portion begins with the laws of ritual purity pertaining to a woman who recently gave birth.
2. Included in that section is the law of circumcision being performed on the eighth day.
3. When one speaks badly of another person, that person would contract a leprosy-like disease known as Tzara'at. Those who are afflicted with Tzara'at must be isolated from the rest of the community.
4. The Torah goes into great detail about the skin condition of Tzara'at, which could appear on one's body, clothes, or house.
5. Much of the first parsha, Tazria, is focused on the details of how one contracts Tzara'at, while the second portion, Metzora details the process one must go through to reenter the community after the fact.

Drash – A Closer Look at the Parsha

“So long as he has the affliction, he shall be impure. He shall dwell alone, outside the camp” (Leviticus 13:46).

Rashi: “Our rabbis taught, ‘Why should only this type of ritually impure person dwell alone? Because by speaking badly of others, he caused separation between husband and wife, between one person and another. It’s fitting that he should be separated.’”

Why must a person with Tzara'at be isolated from other people? According to Rashi, Tzara'at is brought on by the crime of Lashon Hara—speaking badly about others. When one spreads gossip maliciously, the victims are those spouses, friends, and neighbors who find themselves in conflict with one another. Rumors divide people, and so the punishment fits the crime. Just as the slanderous person tries to divide others, so too is he separated from the rest of the community.
