Staci Jones, DDA

Acting Director of Quality Enhancement

Focusing on the "Why"

All People

Have the right to live, love, learn, work and pursue their aspirations in their community.

Focusing on the “Why”

Vision for the Good Life

The Individual will achieve self-determination, interdependence, productivity, integration, and inclusion in all facets of community life.

Families will be supported in ways that maximize their capacities, strengths, and unique abilities to best nurture, love and support all individual members to achieve their goals.

The Trajectory & Life Stages

What I want...

“Good Life”

(THIS is the WHY!)

What I don't want...

DDA's Employment First Trajectory

Employment First, community membership, person-centered, flexibility, capacity, quality, seamless transition, and more...

Unemployment, isolation, poverty, segregation, restriction, lack of choice, low expectations, eligibility-supports-only lives...

Focusing on the “Why”

Experiences and Outcomes

What We Want

Friends, family, job I like, status, enough money, home, faith, vacations, relationship, health, choice, freedometc.

What We DON'T Want

Focusing on the “Why”

Experiences and Outcomes

What happens if there is no vision here?

What happens if the vision is systems-focused?

Integrated Supports Star

- All people need support to lead good lives
- Using a combination of many different kinds of support helps to plot a trajectory toward an inclusive, quality, community life
- This tool can help people brainstorm the supports that they already have or might need in order to work in partnership to make their vision for a good life possible

Figuring out the “How”

“The Good Life”

- What and where are the gaps?
- Who else should be involved in the discussion?
- This can become your road map

How and why should we support relationship building?

How does all of this person-centered planning or community building help you get a job?
