

TV Streaming-the switch from cable TV

Tuesday, March 23, 2021
10am-12pm, Online class

Jeff Timm returns to ALL to provide an update on TV Streaming-the switching from cable TV reliance to internet streaming of live TV, video, and movie content. Jeff last presented an ALL Lecture entitled “Finally I Cut the Cord-My journey to lower cost TV/movie viewing with more & better content” on January 6, 2020. This time the format will be an ALL Class on March, 23, 2021. It is hoped that the virtual class format will allow more interaction with attendees and provide more time for questions and sharing.

One might ask, why present this topic again in such a short time. The answer is simple...a lot has changed regarding content and personal viewing choices in spite of the demise of the in-person movie theatre industry and movie studios going direct to streaming as well as the introduction of many more streaming choices. For example, Disney+, NBC’s Peacock, HBO Max, the demise of some AT&T viewing platforms, etc. are just some of the changes that have occurred since January 2020.

If you are not currently streaming, this class will give you the knowledge to begin. If you are currently streaming you will learn about new content both fee-based and free.

Our presenter: Jeff Timm (ALL Member)

Jeff is retired but during the baseball season serves as an usher for the Milwaukee Brewers at American Family Field (formally Miller Park).

Jeff has held positions in sales, corporate plans, marketing, customer service, business management and market development leadership on a global basis. He has managed division level efforts for two Fortune Five-Hundred® companies-Dupont and Avery Dennison and his last position with Johnson Polymer, formally part of SC Johnson now part of BASF as Global Director-Business Development & Alliances.

Jeff has a forty-six year old son, Kevin, with Down syndrome. When Kevin was born Jeff began his engagement as an advocate for people with disabilities and has served on several boards of agencies dealing with children and adults with developmental disabilities including forming the parent outreach organization Delaware Parents of Downs. Other organizations include the Arc of Delaware, the Arc of Racine (past Board president) and Disability Rights Wisconsin (past Board president). Jeff was also appointed Co-Chair of the Racine Unified School District (RUSD) Inclusion Workgroup-a diverse workgroup made up of special education and regular education teachers, administrators, teacher aids, community advocates, union members and parents of children with developmental disabilities in a five-year effort to bring inclusive practices for students with developmental disabilities to RUSD pre-K through age 21 transition.

Jeff lives in Franksville with wife Penny and between them has four sons and nine grandchildren.
