

Dear Financial District Employer:

To ensure the right conditions and mitigations are in place for the safe return of our businesses and workers, the Toronto Region Board of Trade (the Board), in alignment with public health guidance, has been working hard to address the concerns of the Financial District's workforce.

We convened a working group of 70 leaders in the public, private and health sector, led by a Steering Committee co-chaired by Toronto Mayor John Tory; Jan De Silva, President & CEO, Toronto Region Board of Trade; and Grant Humes, Executive Director, Financial District BIA; and Richard Joy, Executive Director, Urban Land Institute Toronto.

Under the campaign, Ready For You, our focus has been on four areas: Safe Districts; Safe Workplace; Safe Buildings; Safe Travel. Tools and resources have been developed across each of these areas to address the concerns of small businesses, larger employer groups and workforces who want to get back into a more engaged, collaborative, productive, social environment.

A list of mitigations and innovations, along with helpful resources is currently housed on the Board's Ready For You campaign website. You will find:

A Playbook

- An actionable guide for businesses to reduce COVID-19 transmission and ensure consistent, clear communications with employees and visitors.

Leading Practices

- A searchable database of the FDPZ Playbook's leading practices for COVID-19 mitigations and innovations, informed by public health expertise.

Additional Resources

- A Ready for You infographic explaining the employee return to work journey highlighting some of the COVID mitigations in place
- Other materials including videos from our technology showcase and vaccination roundtable, partner stories and mitigations will be made available in the coming weeks

As you are communicating your return to work plans with your employees, we encourage you to please share these resources with them and suggest that they sign-up to receive regular updates at the Ready For You campaign website. The Board will continue to share updates on work happening to support the reopening of the Financial District, including mitigations from business partners as well upcoming events.

Working together, we can set the stage for the safe return of our businesses and workers to the Financial District.

Sincerely,
Toronto Region Board of Trade
