With the myriad of ways, one can communicate today, it takes a concerted effort, lots of practice, and sometimes a little humble pie to communicate effectively. This topic and message will be kicked off with a team activity that is fun, engaging, and interactive!! The Lego Build activity brings the topic of communication to life and provides a great amount of application that we will break down and discuss during our time together.

Your People Will:

- Learn the importance of our "WHY" in communication
- Learn the impact body language plays in communication
- Learn how to use your communication to create Redwood Style connections, those that create trust, loyalty and strong relationships!
- Learn best practices of email communication
- Learn the different communication styles of those we interact with each day
- Learn how to make your communicate more effective, in the end, lessening the number of hours spent clarifying communication.
