

Trauma Informed Care Training

Trauma-informed care (TIC) is an approach to engaging people with histories of trauma, that recognizes the presence of trauma symptoms, and acknowledges the role that trauma has played in their lives. This training will address the issue of how important it is for Behavior Care Providers to learn about trauma and what it looks like. It will also show what a Behavior Health Agency needs to do to help the consumer with a history of trauma feel safe, while they are in treatment.
