2020 Aldo Leopold Writing Contest

Annual Aldo Leopold Writing Contest Invites NM Students to Submit Essays
Albuquerque Native & Nobel Laureate William D. Nordhaus to Present Contest Awards

The 2020 Aldo Leopold Writing Contest encourages New Mexico students in grades 6-12 to submit original essays in response to the following question: How might reuniting our understanding of “ecology” and “economy” help solve today’s environmental problems?

Cash prizes will be awarded to the winning essayists in each of three grade categories: 6-7, 8-9, and 10-12. Submissions are accepted through February 21, 2020.

This year’s essay topic honors the work of both Aldo Leopold, considered by many to be the father of wildlife ecology, and William D. Nordhaus, an Albuquerque native and the 2018 Nobel Laureate in Economics. Nordhaus will present the Aldo Leopold Writing Contest Awards to the winning student essayists, and also deliver the 2020 Annual Leopold Lecture.

In the 1970s, long before many economists were thinking about climate issues, Nordhaus began work on creating a quantitative model that describes the global interplay between the economy and climate. Nordhaus is Sterling Professor of Economics at Yale University and holds B.A. and M.A. degrees from Yale and a Ph.D. from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The COMPLETE PROMPT along with an ENTRY FORM for the 2020 Aldo Leopold Writing Contest follows on the next page.

The Leopold Writing Program is a New Mexico nonprofit dedicated to building on Aldo Leopold’s legacy as a writer by inspiring the next generation of environmental leaders to help advance environmental ethics through the written word. Leopold is best known for A Sand County Almanac (1949) in which he articulates his lifelong philosophical search for how humans could “live on the land without spoiling it.” This search culminated in his “Land Ethic”: “A thing is right when it tends to preserve the integrity, stability, and beauty of the biotic community. It is wrong when it tends otherwise.”

2020 ALDO LEOPOLD WRITING CONTEST

Aldo Leopold is most widely known as the author of A Sand County Almanac. Published in 1949, the book is a classic in Western literature. Leopold believed our economic wellbeing could not be separated from the wellbeing of our environment. His land ethic asserts: “Examine each question in terms of what is ethically and aesthetically right, as well as what is economically expedient. A thing is right when it tends to preserve the integrity, stability, and beauty of the biotic community. It is wrong when it tends otherwise.” Leopold also believed our idea of community should be enlarged to include non-human elements such as soils, waters, plants, animals: “That land is a community is the basic concept of ecology, but that land is to be loved and respected is an extension of ethics.”

RESOURCES Students are encouraged to read “The Land Ethic” and other essays by Aldo Leopold as part of your preparation. These can be found in A Sand County Almanac, available at local libraries, bookstores, and on the internet. Visit www.LeopoldWritingProgram.org to access additional background resources.

ESSAY TOPIC The words “ecology” and “economy” both come from the same Greek root — oikos (see below) — but over time their subject matters have become separated. Today, because of this separation, ecologists and economists see the world differently. But the economic health of society depends on the ecologic health of the planet. An economy is only sustainable if it is informed by ecology.

How might reuniting our understanding of ecology and economy help solve today’s environmental problems?

ecology (n.) 1873, oecology, “branch of science dealing with the relationship of living things to their environments,” coined in German by German zoologist Ernst Haeckel as Ökologie, from Greek oikos “house, dwelling place, habitation” + -logia “study of” (see -logy).

economy (n.) 1530s, “household management,” from Latin oeconomia (source of French économie, Spanish economía, German Ökonomie, etc.); from Greek oikonomia “household management, thrift”; from oikonomos “manager, steward”; from oikos “house, abode, dwelling.”

ELIGIBILITY Contest is open to all students enrolled in grades 6-12 in public, private, and home schools in the state of New Mexico. Students must submit original work and have a sponsoring teacher sign the contest entry form. One entry per person.

FORMAT & AWARDS The length of the essays vary by category as follows:

Grades 6-7:	300-500 words	$500 First Place
Grades 8-9:	400-600 words	$500 First Place
Grades 10-12:	500-700 words	$500 First Place
David E. Stuart Humanitarian Award for Overall Best Essay (at judges’ discretion)		$250 Bonus
