This is a 6-week support group for individuals living in Weld County who are impacted by any form of cancer.

This is a support group for adults living in Weld County who are impacted by cancer, including those who have recently received a diagnosis, those who are undergoing treatment, and those who consider themselves survivors.

Regardless of where you may be in the process, cancer changes an individual's life. Being able to share your experiences with others who understand, finding a community, and connecting with each other as well as the horse herd can help aid in the processing of those life changes. Through our six weeks together, the horses offer their presence, support, care, and sensitivity. The herd allows each participant a chance to create a healing and authentic relationship as well as support each other on your journey to wholeness.

This program is funded through a generous grant from the Weld Trust and is provided at no cost to participants. Donations are always welcome and appreciated.

Each session is limited to 10 participants living in Weld County.
