National Health Center Week

Community Health Centers: Lighting the Way for Healthier Communities Today and in the Future

During National Health Center Week, T.H.E. shared important resources with the community -- information about self-care, immunizations and more. We shined a light on social determinants, such as how race influences housing and health care. We showed special appreciation to our resilient team members as our President and CEO, Clifford Shiepe visited all clinics to check in with staff, letting our frontline workers know they are valued.

Because of our healthcare heroes, we are able to continue care when it is needed more than ever.
