

Her Story

I was excited to take the Kendall Life Languages questionnaire as I had not done anything like this for many years. I found it interesting, and laughable, as I tried to answer some questions that I didn't think even applied to me

When I received my profile, I was astounded as I read the description of my life languages.

My strongest life language was accurate and very detailed with hints on qualities that could be developed. I was amazed that the 'filter' (underlying question I want to have answered in my life) and my 'key need' were so true; these are keys for success.

The order of the other 6 life languages were correct as well, including the descriptions of the strengths of each one.

I found it extremely helpful to know what my husband's primary life language was. It described him perfectly although before this I probably couldn't have put words to it. Understanding how he was created with very different processing and thinking patterns (I did know that before lol) but didn't 'get it'. For instance, knowing that he absolutely has to have a plan in order for him to be comfortable was a big deal for me. A sketchy plan or being spontaneous is fine with me. As well, understanding the underlying ways he exhibits stress is beneficial so I can be a part of the solution and not the problem.

His Story

Before taking the Life Languages Workshop...

Since we have been married for more than fifty years, I was initially hesitant to consider taking the LL profile, despite knowing that all couples can always grow in communication skills with one another. After hearing some extremely positive reports from other couples who took the course with Neil and Annette, I became more open to discovering the benefits for myself.

After taking the Workshop...

I will admit that I was surprised at the detail and accuracy of the results as it applied to my own life. I was even more surprised at the revelation of my wife's life languages results. This opened up a whole new understanding of our various communication breakdowns in the past. And I was pleasantly surprised at the detailed recommendations that Life Languages offers for those who are willing to work at their communication skills. Of course, the next step for my wife and me is implementing what we have learned and applying it to our life with each other and our family (three grown children and seven teenage grandchildren).

Our Story

We discovered that Neil and Annette were excellent in unpacking our life languages. They not only explained in detail our life languages, both primary and secondary, but they gave 'life examples' of what that could look like and how it could impact each of us individually and as a couple. Through this course, we were given the tools to communicate more effectively with both understanding and 'hearing the heart of the other person'. The LLC also revealed communication barriers to be avoided and overcome in the future.

And finally, we have been impressed by the amazing overall plan that links the LLC with the FFC seminars and the follow-up coaching for individuals, couples and families. We can see the incredible positive effect that this plan could have on participants in the future, especially considering the complexity of this modern society where marriages and families are under direct spiritual attack.

We are looking forward to working with FFC in seeing the lives of individuals, couples and families transformed in the future.
