RABBI COWAN'S MESSAGE

"שׁוֹפָר קוֹרֵא בְּהַר-הַבַּיִת בָּעִיר הָעַתִּיקָה."

"A shofar calls out on the Temple Mount in the Old City."

- Yerushalayim Shel Zahav, Naomi Shemer

For the past few weeks, during the Hebrew month of Elul, we have been preparing for the Days of Awe that are quickly drawing closer. We do this not only spiritually and internally, beginning the process of teshuva (repentance), but also audibly, by hearing the shofar every day. Every morning at the end of Shacharit services, the shofar is blown – a reminder that the holiest days of the year are around the corner (and maybe to give our Rosh Hashana shofar blowers some practice blasts before the big day). The blessing over shofar is a bit unique. Blessings and mitzvot often require some form of action – we say a blessing over matzah and then immediately eat it, we say the blessing over a tallit and then immediately don it. But the blessing for a shofar requires a passive action after its recitation. The blessing over the shofar is not to blow the shofar but to hear the shofar. The nature of this mitzvah and blessing often necessitates others to blow the shofar so that we can hear it to fulfill the mitzvah. Rabbinic commentaries even discuss if the shofar blower themselves can hear their own blasts to fulfill the mitzvah (in classic rabbinic fashion, there is no consensus). In essence, the mitzvah of hearing shofar is something that truly requires others – it is not something we can usually fulfill by ourselves.

If the shofar is to act as the wake up call, the reminder to engage in teshuvah, then the shofar being an interpersonal mitzvah of sorts is a reminder that this difficult work is not something we need to or even should do alone. We must work to repair and maintain our relationships with each other and support others in their introspection, in their trying to do better. This work has no limits and echoes in the ears of Jews around the world – it calls out to us from the sanctuary, from our neighbors, and from the far stretches of the Old City in Jerusalem.

What a blessing it is that we have this month of Elul, of hearing the piercing sound of the shofar everyday, from every direction, to prepare us for what will hopefully be an even better year ahead.

The shofar is calling – do you hear it?

Shana tova u'metuka – wishing you the sweetest of new years as we enter 5787.

Rabbi Micah Cowan

PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

A Proud President — and an Even Prouder Mom

I usually use this space to write to you as president of Congregation Beth Judea. But this month, I hope you'll indulge me for a moment while I write as a very proud mom.

In August, our son Jacob participated in his third and final JCC Maccabi Games, held this year in Kansas City. For those who aren't familiar with JCC Maccabi, the Games bring together Jewish teens from communities around the country and around the world for several days of athletic competition, Jewish connection, and a whole lot of fun.

Jacob played baseball on a combined Midwest team made up of teens from Chicago and St. Louis. Over four days, he played seven games—catching all but one—and his team came home with a bronze medal after defeating the Israeli team from Kibbutz Gezer. Neil also had the opportunity to help coach the team, making the experience even more special for our family.

But the moment that made me proudest had nothing to do with baseball. Jacob was also selected to receive a Midot medal for Lev Tov—having a good heart—for demonstrating kindness and good sportsmanship.

As I watched Jacob and hundreds of other Jewish teenagers compete, cheer for one another, make new friends, and proudly represent their Jewish communities, I was reminded of something we sometimes lose sight of: Jewish community is so much bigger than any one family, congregation, city, or generation.

And that feels like a particularly meaningful thought as we begin a new year here at CBJ.

Heading into the High Holidays

At our July Board meeting, I commented that the High Holidays were "early" this year. I was quickly corrected by Rabbi Cowan, who reminded me that the High Holidays are not early. They are, in fact, right on time.

Fair enough.

It made me think, though, about how often we talk about the Jewish calendar in relation to everything else in our lives. The holidays are early. They're late. They fall at an inconvenient time. We have work schedules, school schedules, sports schedules, travel schedules. And then there is the Jewish calendar, following its own rhythm as it has for generations. Maybe there is something valuable in being reminded that it is actually the other way around. Rosh Hashanah arrives exactly when it is supposed to, whether or not we feel ready for it.

That is one of the things I love about this time of year. Whatever else is happening in our lives, the Jewish calendar gives us a reason to stop and reconnect with our traditions, with our community, and with one another.

And after a summer in which I was reminded just how meaningful those Jewish connections can be, I am especially looking forward to coming together at CBJ for the start of 5787.

So, I stand corrected. The High Holidays are not early this year. They are right on time. I look forward to seeing all of you there.

L'Shanah Tovah!

Rachel

SISTERHOOD COOKBOOK

Need help with holiday entertaining or everyday meal prep?
Don't forget the collection of tried and true recipes for all occasions in our Sisterhood cookbook. Only $5 a copy!

The fall holidays are coming up, a busy time of year for all. Many of us spend time with family and friends…and of course food is often part of our gatherings! There are several food customs associated with these holidays. One of the most popular traditions for Rosh Hashanah is dipping apples in honey, symbolizing our wishes for a sweet new year. So, foods with apples and/or honey are often served. And a round challah, also a tradition, represents a wish for a complete, happy year without interruption. Meals on Kol Nidre/Yom Kippur offer other opportunities to try new recipes or make old favorites. We typically break our fast with a dairy meal. These lighter foods help our stomachs readjust after our long fast. Dairy foods, often white, fit with Yom Kippur's theme of purity. Stuffed vegetables and autumn fruits celebrate the bounty of the harvest and are often served on Sukkot.

Take a look at these recipes from your fellow congregants:

1. Cinnamon Apple Cake
2. Salmon Mousse
3. Lomi Lomi Cherry Tomatoes

Synagogues Around the World

Have you visited and taken photos of synagogues on your travels? If so, we would love to feature them here in The Word. Please send your pictures to cbjoffice@bethjudea.org Subject line: shul pix.

Carey Rosemarin shows us the synagogue in South Haven, MI.

First Hebrew Congregation was constricted in 1929. Carey and his family have been coming here for decades. [The interior image is from their web site.]

The congregation is the result of the 1927 merger of the Jewish Farmers' Synagogue and the Hebrew Education Alliance.
