

Not from THINK+change but also good stuff

New Person-Centered Training – now available!

All people deserve the best life possible. Person-centered planning provides tools that support the development and expression of personal choice. Approaching it from an understanding of an individual’s intrinsic motivations embraces and supports the identification of the person’s strengths, goals, preferences, needs, and desired outcomes, leading to the crafting of a desirable life-style and new possibilities for each person.

There are many different tools to support person-centered thinking; however, Steve Tonkin & Company believes that its innovative approach differs through its recognition of the unique value of each individual, identifying and mapping their intrinsic motivations, aligning with what is important to each person.

Steve Tonkin & Company’s interactive and engaging person-centered planning system, trainings and workshops begin by discovering each participant’s intrinsic motivations and the role they play in making their life meaningful. Understanding how motivations influence communication style and behaviors contributes to the development of a motivation-based team approach to better serve people receiving services.

The company’s goal? To provide knowledge and training to community-based organizations that improves the quality of life for people with disabilities.

“(Participant) has blossomed since we took into consideration her Intrinsic Motivation mix! It solidified what we knew about her and gave us the tools we needed in order to set her up for success. So much so that she now is employed at our agency... [and] has made strides in her personal life towards happiness.”

- Bryn Galisewski, Executive Director, Stepping Stone Support Center

To learn more about Steve Tonkin & Company’s innovative, customizable Person-Centered Planning trainings and workshops, visit:

<http://stevetonkin.com/>

or call 720-515-1177.

