

The Street Law outreach program successfully serves as a diversity pipeline to expose students from various ethnic and racial backgrounds to the practice of law in a way that encourages the consideration of legal careers and the pursuit of higher education.

Small teams of volunteer chapter members teach an interactive session on an area of the law at participating high schools. All teaching materials, curriculum and aides are provided to the teams. The in-school sessions are followed by an all-day workshop held at our corporate sponsor's location where the students can learn more about the practice of law as they attend a career fair and lunch with area judges and legal professionals.

April brings about meetings with St. Charles West High School students to present the following sessions:

- Employment Law: April 11th from 10:15 - 11:00 a.m.
- Intellectual Property: April 25th from 10:15-11:00 a.m.

While participation in the Street Law program requires minimal time commitment and a little prior knowledge of the area of law being taught, it does provide great satisfaction to our members and an overwhelmingly positive impact on the students. Street Law continues to be a wildly successful program for ACC St. Louis, with members and students expressing great satisfaction with their participation.
