

Introduce Yourself: Stuart Goldurs

What's Your Story?

Stuart, Middle School, Los Angeles

Stuart, Present, Los Angeles

My name is Stuart Goldurs and I am the youngest-oldest member of Temple Isaiah. I worked at the day camp, in the office, and at the religious school. I am the religious school's audio-visual monitor emeritus.

My parents were involved in the temple in many ways and my father was one of the original-three ushers when the building opened in 1953.

I started ushering for both the High Holidays and for Friday night services when I was in high school. I have coordinated High Holiday ushering for over 30 years.

This is my 38th year teaching elementary school and my 11th year volunteer teaching at my local elementary school. I also volunteer for ChaiVillageLA, and at the temple.

I am an avid reader, daily walker, Cleveland Indians fan, and a follower of Los Angeles history. I share memories of growing up on the Westside and at Temple Isaiah while noting things and places on the Westside that are no longer here. I run a home-based business.
