So, What Happens Now?

By Kevin Beaber, CMEA President

So, What Happens Now?

I hope that by now most, if not all of you are back in a classroom likely with modifications for number of students in a room, socially distancing, sanitizing common items like chairs, stands, etc., and anything else that the school, district and county health department has requested of you. I also hope that you see how much your students missed being with you in your classroom and making music. I sincerely hope that the time back with your students is as emotionally fulfilling for you as it is for your students. Our profession, teaching in general but music education especially, has been presented a series of challenges the past 12 months (yes, it has barely been a year) that have tested us professionally, intellectually and emotionally. In the best of times teaching children can feel like both a blessing and a curse and during times of sheltering in place and distance learning it seems as if it is even more so. I know that there are profound frustrations that you have had to deal with, many of which have challenged your desire to continue being a music teacher. You have surely heard people ask the question, “When will things get back to normal?”

I receive a number of emails weekly with invitations to webpages, webinars, blogs, YouTube videos, etc., as I am sure you do. I try to read as many as I can, although I am sure you will agree that keeping up is a tough thing to do. My wife has been battling cancer, diagnosed last summer, so I have had opportunities to talk to different doctors, nurses, and other medical personnel about how COVID-19 has worked its way into our lives and their opinion on how it will continue to be in our lives (as you might guess, there is no singular answer to that one). One thing that I have gathered from all of this information is that there is no going back to normal. The culture of Colorado, the United State of America, and the world in general has been altered and the only way to move forward is to accept that “normal” will be a mixture of life before and during the pandemic. I believe that there were things we had to learn to do in distance learning that can be beneficial to our programs and classrooms as we reestablish our classrooms. It is far better, and a more healing way of life, to find and take the positives from difficult situations and use them to make yourself, your life and your profession better.

We have been back in the classroom in my district full time since January 5th. There was a two-week period where some of our athletes had to be quarantined for exposure but since then there have been no more disruptions to school days beyond weather. I share this because my singers and instrumentalists were a bit more than rusty that first week (or more...). Skills and techniques were not as sharp, focus was rough and getting back to working in collaboration with others seemed somewhat foreign. It was frustrating for me, and it was for them as well because they knew what they wanted to do and what was expected but had lost some of the skill set to make music together. But things improved, gradually at first but within a month or so I felt like they were starting to remember and piece together the talents they had honed before distance learning took over. I share this with you as a gesture of hope. The greatest part of coming back into the classroom together was how much they realized what they were missing and how much they appreciated the opportunity to make music again with each other. I hope that as you come back to the classroom you will see how much your students missed you and making music with you and each other, that you will see how quickly the rust falls away and the desire to polish their skills is stronger than ever, and that what we do is ESSENTIAL to our students, our schools, our school districts, our communities, our state and our nation. Never before has the need for what music can do for individuals and societies more necessary. I ask that you renew your commitment to music, you renew your commitment to your students and school, and that by doing so you find that you truly renew your commitment to yourself and heal from a difficult yet not an impossible time in our lives.

Donate to CMEA

Because of the ongoing pandemic, CMEA has suffered major losses in revenue since last March. Our membership is down by 60%, the majority of All-States Groups this year were cancelled, and income from the annual conference is 1/3 of its normal amount. CMEA is seeking donations to help offset expenses during this pandemic. You are encouraged to contribute whatever amount you are able to afford. Your support is greatly appreciated.

Vocal Music News

By Tanner Oharah Vocal Music Council Chair

Hello wonderful music educators,

My name is Tanner Oharah and I am excited to be serving as your CMEA vocal music chair. I am grateful for the time I was able to spend learning from Todd Dicamillo and realize I have some big shoes to fill. Congratulations to Alyssa Miller on being awarded the position of chair-elect! I am very excited for our partnership in leading the vocal council for the next couple years. I would also like to welcome our new council members, Shannon Schell from district 1, Anna Saks from district 5, and Marla Sitton from district 7. Together with all of our council members we will work to support singing in Colorado. It is my hope for this council that in this time of so many questions about what kinds, distances, and types of singing are allowed that we are newly able to respect and recognize the diverse and creative ways that music education is happening in all of our classrooms around the state. If you have great ideas of how the CMEA vocal council can support you or our state please reach out and I would love to hear your ideas and suggestions.

Thank you for entrusting us with this opportunity to serve you,
Tanner Oharah

Musically,

From the Instrumental Council Chair

By Pete Toews, Instrumental Music Council Chair

I am in awe of our colleagues around the state. Over the past year, we have had to re-think and redesign our classrooms, rehearsals, and concert halls. We have spent countless hours online teaching, engaging, and caring for students. We have endured schedule changes, contact tracing, and social distancing. And we've done it because, as Scott Lang reminded us in the opening session at our Clinic/Conference this year, "Music is a soul-enriching, life-changing medium."

I want to send heartfelt thank you to everyone involved in the 2021 virtual Clinic/Conference. Our presenters inspired us to think about new ways to engage and enrich the lives of our students through technology, literature selection, and rehearsal strategies. They gave us strategies to take care of the social-emotional needs of our students and ourselves. And, they provided a space to discuss the need for more diversity in our classrooms and in our curriculum. A special thank you to our headliners Yo Goto, Soon Hee Newbold, and Dr. Matt Spieker.

Preparations are underway for the 2022 clinic/conference. Please consider submitting an ensemble recording or clinic session proposal (or both!). Performance groups at CMEA help inspire and elevate all of our programs. Without concerts and festivals, this year's audition submissions may look different from past years. We are encouraging you to be creative and think about new ways to present a performance - reduced instrumentation, chamber ensembles, demonstration/lecture performances. The knowledge we gain from listening to excellent groups is priceless and the more recordings we have to choose from, the better. There is such a wealth of knowledge in our membership that can also be shared through clinics. If you have an idea for a great clinic, don't second guess your ability to present to your peers. You have unique skills and experiences that would benefit the teaching professionals in our state. Check the CMEA website for submission instructions and deadlines.

As we head down the final stretch of the school year, I hope you can find some time to reflect on your experiences throughout the year. Allow yourself to rumble with your failures, take off your armor, and keep showing up (thanks to Nick Hinman for introducing us to Brené Brown). But also, take the time to honor the successes you have experienced - that new rehearsal technique or new technology you've used to make your classroom more efficient and engaging! Continue to share with your friends and colleagues. You are not alone.

We Are CMEA: Stronger Together!

With much admiration,

Pete Toews

General Music Council News!

By Elizabeth Ford, General Music Council Chair

Hello my fellow colleagues and friends!

With Music Appreciation Month in full swing, I have been reflecting over the past year as we reached the anniversary of the Covid Shutdown. Our music teaching community rallied behind each other to shift our thinking and ways of teaching so that we can still bring and instill a love and appreciation for music to our students. We shared ideas of teaching tool kits, student learning kits, lessons with minimal to no singing, digital manipulatives, and more! We created videos to share in our lessons or videos of concerts! We moved forward without training and pulled through more successfully than any of us could even imagine! Congratulations! While we are not out of the woods yet, we know that we can continue to strive together for goodness, greatness and success as music teachers.

I want to take this opportunity to thank those in particular whom we are greatly indebted. Our CMEA General Music Council members worked diligently this year to bring a marvelous virtual convention. Thank you to our 2019-21 representatives: Karissa Swanson (District 1), Kim Hohensee (District 2), Paul Maley (District 3), Julie Kuhlman (District 4), Rebecca Walker (District 5), Jenna Eaton (District 6), Kalinda Theobald (District 7), and Keith Bushman (District 8)! Your ideas and expertise were incredible! Thank you to Shannon Glenn, our GMC Secretary, for assisting with whatever we threw at you. Finally, thank you to our outgoing GMC chair, Elizabeth Moffett (Ford)! We make an amazing team, and I'm honored to have learned the ropes under your guidance! Congratulations to our incoming representatives: Chelsea Pennock (District 1), Kristina Kafka (District 5), and Nicholas Brenholtz (District 7). A HUGE congratulations to our incoming chair-elect, Kalinda Theobald! I know we have our work cut out for us leading the charge as restrictions are lifted and hopefully able to return to an in-person conference in 2022, but I also know we are determined to succeed!

With many districts and counties around the state lifting or adjusting the restrictions, the CMEA Board has adjusted the schedule for session submissions as well as performance submissions. I want to strongly encourage you to consider submitting a session proposal or performance for the CMEA 2022 Conference. In particular, we aim to focus several sessions on cultural and diversity awareness as well as teaching and honoring our students through these changes. We also hope to have some live concerts again at our conference!!! Please be watching for these schedule changes in upcoming CMEA newsletters and emails.

Wishing you a successful and joyful end to your 2020-2021 school year!

Warmly,
Cathy Keller

College-University Music Council

By Sean Flanigan, College and University Council Chair

Greetings!

I am so grateful to all my music education colleagues for their courage and tenacity in dealing with the challenges we have faced during this last very challenging year. I was inspired by the presentations and participation of the recent online Clinic/Conference this past January. I would like to congratulate our executive leaders who did such a great job with its planning and implementation.

As we finish up this school year, I'm excited about this coming fall and the promise it brings. I am currently beginning a two-year term as Chair of the College/University Council and I am joined by Chair-Elect, Dr. Martina Miranda of the University of Colorado-Boulder, whose deep knowledge and experience will be so valuable to us in this role. Our Council has been focused on what our university programs need to provide for the next generation of music education professionals. The experiences of this past year have added a new layer of challenges they must meet. Issues related to diversity and inclusion have risen to the top of the agenda for every school and organization. Issues of wellness for students, teachers and staff remain important as well.

In order to address these issues and more, we are seeking dynamic proposals for the 2022 Clinic/Conference that go past the traditional topics of a music education event. I am excited about the CMEA Board of Directors commitment to lead the nation in addressing the challenges of today's music education professionals.

Finally, congratulations to all of you for your dedication, care, flexibility and professionalism as we build for an exciting new year ahead. Have a great end to the spring term and a wonderful summer!

Tri-M News

By Michelle Ewer, CMEA Tri-M Chair

Greetings Tri-M

It is hard to believe we are in the final stretch of the school year. Have you incorporated any new tips from Tri-M day into your teaching? Did you start a podcast at your school? Did you create community opportunities for your students to perform or make connections with people outside of your school? Did you discuss performance anxiety, or talk about entrepreneurship with your students? If your inside voice says yes, congratulations. If the answer is no, it is alright as well. Many chapters found this year to be rough on Tri-M chapters. Hybrid, remote, 100% remote, snow days that became remote days, quarantine days. We have been through it all. Allow yourself some grace and empathy.

Are there still some opportunities for your chapter this spring? A parking lot concert at a senior center? An outdoor cleanup event on your school grounds or street nearby your school?

Flipgrids to welcome new incoming students to your program? I am sure you can think of others. As you head back to in person teaching remember that inviting guest via zoom or google meets is still an excellent resource. For our last meeting I invited College students to speak with our chapter on what it is like to major in Music. Thank you, CU Boulder. Invite a local Jazz Artist or a composer, or a conductor to speak with your group. It never hurts to ask!

I am always happy to toss out suggestions for you and your chapter. Ultimately you know what is best for your students. During a year such as we are tackling, they want a safe place to hang and talk with other Music Students. They want to relate to people who share the same passion and love for music that they do. Anything that you can do to help facilitate this is a bonus. If you are ready to order graduation swag here is a link to the NAFME merchandise store. <https://www.abdi-ecommerce10.com/NAFMEWebStore/c-128-All-Catalogs.aspx>

Membership News

By Andrea L. Meyers, Retired and Active Membership Chair

Dear CMEA Friends,

Bravo and Special thanks to our CMEA Board, State Assembly, and Ex-Officio Members of the State Assembly and Creative Generation Team for producing an extraordinary and unprecedented 2021 Virtual Conference.

Our Virtually fabulous Brown Bag Zoom meeting was enthusiastically attended with great participation, extraordinary connectivity and the protocols of the Creative Generation Team made this experience seamless and beautifully orchestrated - Thanks Jeff! We enjoyed an hour of socializing, catching up, laughing, sharing stories and memories. We have a few new ones now. This unprecedented virtual getting together was absolutely successful and albeit not in person, we had a great fun factor happening.

Phenomenal leadership throughout our association!

We enjoyed listening to President Kevin Beaber, Cynthia Eversole, President-Elect, and Bill Kohut, our Executive Director - exceptional and profound teamwork. We are/I am so grateful for their organization and leadership. A special congratulations to all our exceptional leadership, members, participants, guest presenters, exhibitors throughout the 2021 Clinic/Conference. Varied, creative and absolutely inspirational. Super success with Tri-M - thanks to Michelle Ewer, CMEA Past-President and Hall of Fame.

We had a CMEA Trivia based competition and the winner receives a complimentary registration for our Clinic/Conference in 2022. Can you name two performers/performing groups that appeared at the Presidents Concerts? Which Denver based professional orchestra performed three times at CMEA conferences? Can you name two CMEA Hall of Fame members that were inducted in the past five years? And, this one is great; what CMEA President is famous for over filling the jacuzzi tub in the Presidential Suite with bubble bath - and having the bubbles fill the bathroom? Ask Mike Gill! He was our grand winner!

Truly, it was wonderful to renew our friendships and professional relationships, while enjoying and honoring our 'retired' status. Reflecting back on our experiences and the growth of music education throughout Colorado and nationwide is always informative and entertaining.

To everyone who attended - thank you! And, special congratulations to all new award recipients during the conference. Bravo to J. Cameron Law and Anne Paulu, our newest CMEA Hall of Fame inductees. We are so proud of your lifelong contributions to Music Education. Please enjoy reading throughout the 2021 Spring Journal for wonderful updates, newly elected leaders, other award recipients, and plans for next year.

Our future, in Colorado is unparalleled do to exceptional planning and serves to restore and revitalize our future and continued success and traditions. Future scenarios in encouraging new sessions and opportunities for our membership are forever transforming. All this makes our conference relatable, viable, and relevant. I love that our sessions are still available throughout the year. Check our website for updates and information.

Remember - WE ARE ALL CMEA!

Musically yours,
Andrea Meyers

Dr. Jeffrey Nytch Named Yamaha Master Educator in New Music Business & Entrepreneurship Group

BUENA PARK, Calif. (February 11, 2021) – Yamaha today announced that Dr. Jeffrey Nytch has joined the Yamaha Master Educator Collective in the newly-launched Music Business & Entrepreneurship group.

Dr. Nytch joins a group of 30 distinguished academics, clinicians, consultants and authors who comprise the Yamaha Master Educator Collective—top-tier educators from across North America recognized as the most highly regarded experts in their fields. The newly established Music Business & Entrepreneurship group is the latest evolutionary stage of the collective, expanding its capabilities to help educators prepare students for the modern music industry.

Dr. Nytch has built a diverse career as a composer, teacher, performer, arts administrator and consultant. In 2009, he joined the faculty at the University of Colorado Boulder (CU), where he currently serves as director of the Entrepreneurship Center for Music. Since arriving at CU, Nytch has rebuilt the Entrepreneurship Center for Music into one of the top programs of its kind in the country. In addition to his work with arts entrepreneurship, Dr. Nytch has been a professional musician for more than 25 years, performed a wide range of repertoire as a vocalist, run a small business, co-founded a non-profit service organization in Houston and served six seasons as managing director of the Pittsburgh New Music Ensemble, one of the nation's premier new music ensembles.

“As a musician, composer and non-profit organizer, Jeffrey is a unique molder of young minds. His non-linear career path has given him a wide perspective of understanding and inspired his approach to music education,” said John Wittmann, senior director of Artist Relations and Education, Yamaha. “With his passionate belief that entrepreneurship serves as the key to transferring skills to other disciplines, Jeffrey works with students from across the country, many of them hopeful future performing artists, to help them discover how to create and enjoy successful careers.”

As one of the leading voices in his profession, Nytch has presented papers for numerous organizations, both in the United States and abroad, including the United States Association of Small Business and Entrepreneurship, College Music Society, National Association of Schools of Music, Marketing Management Association, and Society of Arts Entrepreneurship Education.

“Becoming a part of the Yamaha Master Educator Music Business Group has filled me with great pride, humility and excitement. I look forward to exploring the opportunities to teach educators and their students about how entrepreneurship can help build the musicians' career toolbox and can translate to impactful and meaningful contributions to a diverse group of audiences,” said Dr. Nytch.

Since 2016, the Yamaha Master Educator Collective has sought to connect the nation's top thought leaders in music education as a resource for educators and students at the middle school through collegiate levels, by offering professional development opportunities across diverse fields in the music industry.

The Music Business and Entrepreneurship group focuses on providing meaningful access to new opportunities for innovation and growth within this quickly expanding educational field.
