Your Skills Can Make a Difference in Wyoming

Nurse Practitioners + Certified Nurse-Midwives + Title X Family Planning

Wyoming Health Council administers the Title X Family Planning Program in Wyoming, supporting a network of local clinics that provide high-quality, confidential reproductive and preventive healthcare. Across Wyoming, access to care can depend on having a qualified provider available. NPs and CNMs can play an important role in keeping these services available in Wyoming communities.

What is Title X?

Title X is the nation's federal family planning program and an important part of Wyoming's healthcare safety net. Title X clinics provide affordable, confidential care to individuals across the reproductive lifespan, regardless of insurance status, with priority given to people with lower incomes. For some patients, particularly those living in rural and frontier communities, a Title X clinic may be one of the few accessible sources of reproductive and preventive healthcare.

It's About More Than Birth Control

- Contraceptive counseling and the full range of available contraceptive methods
- STI and HIV screening, testing, treatment, and prevention
- Pregnancy testing and nondirective pregnancy counseling
- Cervical cancer screening
- Reproductive goals and family-building counseling
- Fertility awareness and body and health literacy
- Preconception and interconception health
- Preventive health screening, education, referrals, and connections to additional care

Why NPs and CNMs?

Advanced practice nursing professionals bring clinical expertise, prevention, patient education, counseling, relationship building, and whole-person care that are a natural fit for Title X.
You do not necessarily need to specialize in family planning. Primary care, women's health, reproductive health, midwifery, and other clinical experience can translate well to the Title X setting, with training and resources available to support providers.

Wyoming Needs Providers

Long travel distances, limited specialty care, and healthcare workforce shortages can make routine reproductive healthcare difficult to obtain. In some Wyoming communities, even one additional NP or CNM can make a meaningful difference in whether patients can receive timely care close to home. Opportunities may vary by community and do not necessarily require a traditional full-time position.

Not Looking for Another Clinical Position?

You can still help. Knowing where Wyoming's Title X clinics are located gives you another resource for patients who need affordable or confidential reproductive and sexual healthcare, particularly those who are uninsured, underinsured, or experiencing barriers to care.
